CHECKING IT OUT--Seafarer Club employees make sure their expanded salad bar is still well stocked after the lunch crowd. The improved salad bar is just the first of many changes Jim Crane, the acting manager, wants to implement. A potato bar and a deli-sandwich line are also in the plans to improve the service at the local club. Above, Vera Walker, Irene Hagemen and Beatrice Cummings prepare to stock the bar.

Vibrant club sought by acting manager

Introducing an expanded salad bar is just the first of a variety of improvements planned by Jim Crane for the Seafarer Club, A field representative from the Club Branch, Morale, Welfare & Recreation Department, Naval Military Personnel Command, Crane will be the acting manager of the Seafarer Club for a minimum of 30 days.

"A field representative's job is to provide consultation, management assistance and also to serve as interim manager of clubs throughout the Navy whenever needed," Crane said of his temporary role at

Not only does Crane have more than 28 years of club management experience, 20 of which were spent as a club manager in the Air Force, he also has a restaurant management degree from the Community College of the Air Force, Gunther AFB, Ala., and a business management degree from the University of Maryland. In addition, he has attended culinary upgrade classes from the Culinary Institute of America and the Armed Forces Culinary Upgrade Programs.

The acting manager has already made a number of observations about the Seafarer Club. "There is potential for improved patronage," he said, "and the employees want to provide good service to their customers. The facilities and equipment themselves are adequate for the purposes for which they are intended."

One of Crane's main objectives is to provide new standard operating procedures throughout the Center's clubs. "These new operating procedures should improve customer service, establish management controls and training programs for the club's employees, and to help (Continued on Page 5)

OUESTION

There's a concern in the valley about our water supply, but I've noticed that the lawn sprinklers set at several sites around the base are set to go off at four or five o'clock in the afternoon. This is the absolutely worst time to try and water anything in the summer time. People working in Lauritsen Lab have been getting a shower in the afternoons coming out of work because the wind is blowing so strongly from the west that it is blowing the water across the sidewalk, which isn't doing the lawn any good. The water is also running down the street, which isn't doing anything either. Perhaps NWC ought to be doing something in addition to the civilians in Ridgecrest. ANSWER

We at the Naval Weapons Center and particularly the Public Works Department are very aware of the need to conserve water and are aware of the sprinkler situation. The department has established a task team to address these and other watering issues. A new watering policy with clearer guidelines and tighter controls will be generated!

"Standing on the Shoulders of a Giant"

We who live today are the descendants of people who blazed trails, dared to dream and sail uncharted seas. We are who we are because of the heritage which they bequeathed to us. To them we are indebted.

Today's Navy chaplains, who are African-American, stand upon the giant shoulders of Capt. Thomas David Parham Jr., CHC, USN, (Ret.).

Parham was the second African-American chaplain in the U.S. Navy, having been commissioned in September 1944. He was and still is an ordained Presbyterian clergyman. He was the first Navy chaplain of his racial/ethnic background to be promoted to Captain on active duty, to go to sea, to serve the Fleet Marine Force and to retire nonmedically. The accolades go on for service to the Navy of 33 years of active duty and 4 1/2 years of inactive duty. Like RAdm. John J. O'Connor, CHC, USN, (Ret.), Archbishop of the Roman Catholic Archdiocese of New York and a retired Navy Chief of Chaplains, Parham also holds a Ph.D. degree. He retired Apr. 1, 1982.

The point of the matter is that Parham rendered an outstanding level of ministry to sea service personnel. And we African-American Navy chaplains are able to provide and/or facilitate ministry because we are privileged to walk in his footsteps. His legacy of ministerial service must be appreciated and affirmed continuously lest we forget.

I must confess that, as we celebrate the 65th observance of African-American (Black) History Month, I am proud to travel as a Navy chaplain the sea which Parham charted. His career did make a difference in the Navy. Today, there are more African-American chaplains serving on active duty than at any time in U.S. Naval history. Approximately seven percent of the nearly 1,200 Navy chaplains on active duty are African-American. The percentage of African-Americans in the Chaplain Corps is the highest of all officer communities in the navy.

Parham, growing up as he did in the 1920s and 1930s, had to have known the oppression and exploitation of an ofttimes covert system of brutality which at moments became overt. But Parham also grew up in the church, the body of Christ. In that community he heard proclaimed that he was to love his enemies and pray for those who persecuted him. Because he knew what it meant to be an outcast, he was able to befriend the people to whom he ministered.

Thomas David Parham Jr. is no ordinary person. He is a many among men. He has been touched by the hand of God.

An active statistician for more than 40 years, he is the author of nearly 200 papers and several books, including Out of the Crisis. Dr. Deming shares information about the management system that served North America from about 1920 to 1958 which has now brought U.S. industry close to a state of economic collapse. Japanese industry has taken the lead in numerous areas of technology, applied science and innovation. Questions answered include: How can this economically catastrophic situation be reversed? What role has the merit system played in our decline and how can it be changed? How can management accomplish the transformation that is required? How can international economic cooperation be achieved to make America an industrial leader again before it is too late? Knowledge is required of variation, statistical theory, the distinction between common causes and special causes, tampering, interaction of forces, operational definitions and psychology.

Veterans Readjustment Act (VRA) appointments are non-competitive appointments which lead to competitive status and career or career-conditional tenure upon completion of service and education or

The spirit and concept of the VRA Program represents an improved method for providing employment opportunities, coupled with training or education, for veterans. This appointment reflects the continuing interest in enhancing employment opportunities for veterans.

The Naval Weapons Center (NWC) Human Resources Department has received the following information from the U.S. Office of Personnel Management regarding the Veterans Readjustment Act. Public Law 101-237 passed on Dec. 18, 1989, extended the VRA appointment authority, with modifications, through Dec. 31, 1993. Because of these changes in the VRA Program, veterans who were formerly eligible for the program may not be eligible now. All veterans with applications on file with the NWC Human Resources Department affected by these changes will be notified by letter in 30 days regarding changes to their status in the VRA Program.

The following are the criteria which must be met to be eligible for a VRA appointment:

·Certain veterans of the Vietnam era and veterans of the post-Vietnam era who are qualified for such employment and advancement, i.e., a veteran of the Vietnam era who (1) has a service connected disability; or (2) during such era, served on active duty in the Armed Forces in a campaign or expedition for which a campaign badge has been authorized; and a veteran who served on active duty after the Vietnam era. The Vietnam era is defined as the period beginning Aug. 5, 1964 and

•The time limit on eligibility is limited to the 4-year period beginning on the date of the veteran's last discharge or release from active duty; or the 2-year period beginning on the date of the enactment of the law, Dec. 18, 1989, whichever is later.

·Veterans may have no more than 16 years of education at the time of the appointment for nondisabled veterans and post-Vietnam era veterans (bachelor's degree or less, or equivalent). There is no education restriction for disabled veterans who are entitled to disability compensation or whose discharge or release was for service-connected disabil-
